THE LAKE BRUCE CONSERVANCY DISTRICT NEWS

The Lake Bruce Conservancy District held its annual meeting and election directors and officers Thursday, February 16, in the community room of the Kewanna-Union Township Fire Station. All five directors, ten freeholders and one guest were in attendance.

After a unanimous approval of the minutes of the January meeting and the treasurer's report, Chairman Norm Steigely went through correspondence received during the month. He noted that the conservancy has received the management report from Weed Patrol that was sent to the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) for LARE funding. The permit for 2006 spraying has been received from the DNR, as well as the notice from the Army Corp of Engineers approving the district's application for dredging. This is just the first step as the district must still get funding approved for the LARE grant to make the dredging a feasible program. Also, information requested by the Division of Water on the district's change of purpose was mailed so the district would comply with their regulations.

Steigely stated he had received a call from Don Towne, Fulton County Surveyor, in regards to the cleaning of the two sediment traps constructed on the Baker Ditch. Towne stated that the property owner to the north of County Road 75 would not let anyone on the property to clean out that sediment trap; but the one south of County Road 75 will be cleaned. These traps were constructed to help keep down the sediment flowing into the lake.

In reading through the 2004 explanation of the LARE program for dredging, Steigely discovered that if a cooperative agreement was made with the Fulton County Drainage Board, the district would have a better chance of obtaining a LARE grant. A presentation was given to the drainage board Monday, February 13, seeking a cooperative agreement with them. The board agreed to have their attorney write up the agreement stating the district and drainage board would work together on projects of mutual interest and that they would financially support this by monitoring and maintaining sediment traps within the watershed.

Edwin Buswell, Executive Director of the Kankakee-Iroquois Regional Planning Commission, conducted a training session for the conservancy directors to enable them to conduct an income survey as applications for federal grants usually require the survey. The directors will be randomly contacting people within the district during the next few months. The information asked is very vague. It seeks to find out the number of people living in a household and whether you are above or below a certain income figure. All information is confidential.

An election for directors whose terms had expired was held from 1 to 6 p.m. Directors elected to four-year terms include Norm Steigely, District 1; Gerald Porter, District 2; and Tom Davies, District 4. The oath of office was administered by the vice chairman, Kathy Fisher. Officers elected for 2006 include Norm Steigely, chairman and secretary; Dave Foust, treasurer; and Gerald Porter, vice chairman. The board would like to thank pole judges Rita Foust, Fred Gilsinger and Barb Steigely for their service once again this year.

Steve Fralish of Whitman-Petrie gave a presentation explaining the preliminary engineering report for the sewer project that was delivered to each director earlier in the week. It covered rates, the collection system and the treatment facility. It was a very complete report totaling 64 pages of information. He also noted that a presentation on the proposed treatment plant will be given at the next conservancy district meeting. This will be about a 30-minute video presentation.

Guidelines for Keeping Glyphosate an Effective Tool

Marestail, waterhemp, lambsquarters and common ragweed are several weeds showing either resistance or tolerance to glyphosate. To keep glyphosate effective for the long run, consider the following stewardship guidelines:

- Use the Roundup Ready® crop that best fits your farm, then plant conventional crops using non-glyphosate herbicides the following year
- Rotate glyphosate with herbicides containing other modes of action
- Avoid more than two glyphosate applications in any field over a two-year period. If this isn't possible, add alternative chemistries as a tank-mix partner or in a sequential application
- Use full rates of glyphosate to minimize tolerant weed escapes
- In burndown programs, always tank-mix glyphosate with 2,4-D or other non-glyphosate herbicides.

In Roundup Ready soybeans, consider soil applications of products like FirstRate®, Python® WDG, Pendimax® or Gangster herbicide. FirstRate can also be post-applied as a tank-mix partner with glyphosates like Glyphomax® XRT or Durango™ herbicide.

In Roundup Ready corn, using reduced to full rates of soil-residual products like Keystone®, Keystone LA, FulTime®, Surpass®, TopNotch® or Python WDG herbicide eliminates weed competition for nutrients and moisture.

BBB's Top Inquiry and Complaint List

The Better Business Bureau of Northern Indiana has released its annual top ten inquiry and complaint lists for 2005.

The BBB had 192,672 instances of service in 2005. This figure reflects consumers' confidence in the BBB to assist them in their purchasing decisions and dispute resolution. With Indiana ranking No. 22 in fraud in 2004 and climbing (on a negative swing to No. 9 in 2005), there is a distinct need for education. Con artists never give up and they affect all ages in the business and consumer sectors.

Home builders had the highest number of consumer inquiries, but they did not appear in the top ten complaint category. This industry has done a very commendable job of responding to consumers and adhering to self-regulation standards. An inquiry is the process of consumers contacting or going on the BBB website to find out about a company or companies before signing a contract and it is paying off for consumers and home builders.

Before The Pregnancy . . . Take Your Folic Acid

So … you want to have a baby. Have you taken your folic acid today?

Just like everything else in life, you usually have better results when you plan ahead; and what could be more important than the health of your child?

Sandy Roth, RNC NP, at Monterey Family and Women's Health, wants to remind women to plan ahead and get an adequate amount of folic acid intake before they even conceive and throughout pregnancy. Research shows this can significantly reduce the risk of their baby being born with neural tube defects.

Folic acid (folate) is a B vitamin found in fortified breakfast cereals, leafy green vegetables such as kale or spinach, black beans, peanuts, enriched breads and pastas, orange juice and broccoli.

Neutral tube defects (NTD) occur when the neural tube of an embryo fails to close, exposing the developing brain or spinal cord to amniotic fluid. Two types of NTD are anencephaly, in which the brain never develops or is absent, and spina bifida (with or without neurological defects), in which the spinal cord and backbones are not properly developed. While children with spina bifida can lead productive lives, babies with anencephaly die in utero or soon after birth.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) indicate that half of all pregnancies in the United States are unplanned. Since the neural tube closes very early in pregnancy, often before women know they're pregnant, the CDC recommends that all women 15 to 45 years old consume 400 micrograms of folic acid daily.

Look for an over- the-counter multivitamin that contains the recommended amount of folic acid, then supplement with folic-rich foods. If you are trying to conceive, however, ask your doctor about a prenatal vitamin prescription; the recommended daily amount for pregnant women is 600 micrograms of folate.

Men and folic acid

Folic acid also may be important for men, as far as fertility is concerned. A study published in 2001, by researchers at the University of California at Berkeley linked low levels of the vitamin with decreased sperm count and density. A Danish study, published in 2002, reported that men with fertility problems who took both folic acid and zinc supplements increased their sperm counts. More research is needed before physicians can make widespread recommendations.

One of the most rewarding benefits of this job is to interact with young people who have excelled in academics, athletics or music. I had the opportunity last week to meet with some of Miami County's finest, when I spoke to a group of students and parents at Maconaquah High School. These juniors and seniors had been on the honor roll for four semesters or more, and were honored with an academic letter. I was very impressed to observe these young people and hear their plans and dreams for the future.

Most of the students I talked with were very specific about their plans to attend college and major in a medical field, business or engineering. I tried to encourage them about life and the need to persevere. It is not enough to want or dream for something. In order to succeed today, students must have the drive and character to complete the studies required to achieve their goals and dreams. I am very proud to see that each of the students honored for their achievement last week understands what it takes to enhance their educational opportunities.

Included in the advice I gave to these students was an equation: opportunity + effort = success.

Both students and adults can take lessons from this because it will always apply to the things we need to accomplish in life. Effort will always amplify our ability to be successful when we take advantage of opportunity. I hope that all of these students continue to take their achievement seriously and use it for tomorrow's opportunities. These students have already put forth so much effort in their personal growth and success. I hope they continue to use the drive and determination they have already discovered to help them succeed in life. It was an inspiration to be in a room full of hard working students who will truly make a difference in our community and our nation.

The General Assembly is beyond the midway point and the Major Moves initiative is still at the forefront of debate. Some local governments are attempting to pass funding mechanisms like the wheel tax or local income taxes to fund highway and jail projects. It seems to be very difficult to pass these initiatives because taxpayers are not receptive to new taxes. Whether it is a gas tax or a local income tax, no one seems to want it. That should make the Major Moves program more attractive to them. The Governor's program will complete the much needed projects without any tax increase. This innovative proposal that completes the Hoosier Heartland Corridor, U.S. 31 upgrade and many other needed projects without increasing taxes is very reasonable and should be adopted.

The legislature is also debating several options regarding energy issues. Ethanol production incentives will be considered and should be passed. Alternative fuel sources must be encouraged to improve our energy conservation practices and to relieve our dependence on foreign oil. Ethanol is good for Indiana's farmers, economy and our construction industry. We should not be reluctant to promote this energy source.

It is my hope that with my efforts and Senator Weatherwax's efforts, we can pass an alternative energy plan out of the General Assembly that will create the needed tools to accelerate the development of renewable and alternative fuel production in our state. Indiana has a unique opportunity to be the leader in the production of alternative fuels. We must take some of our state's most abundant resources and use them to our advantage by promoting energy independence and stimulating the growth of Indiana's economy.

From The Desk Of....
State Representative ERIC A. GUTWEIN
District 16

(STATEHOUSE) This session, my House Republican colleagues and I have added energy needs as part of our legislative agenda. In an effort to improve Indiana's energy policy, we have introduced House Bill 1332 to aid in Indiana's economic growth in acquiring alternative fuel sources. This bill will provide incentives for the biodiesel, biomass and ethanol production. Our state needs to expand its research and economic development in renewable fuels to assure that we have the tools to compete in the future.

HB 1332 increases the credit limit to $50 million for tax incentives for companies to produce biodiesel, blended diesel and ethanol. This bill also sets up a schedule on the amount of tax credits for production of alternative fuels.

In addition, we have passed legislation that promotes the use of alternative fuels. House Bill 1232 requires the Environment Quality Service Council (EQSC) to conduct a study on implementing the Renewable Fuels Standards in Indiana and requires motor vehicles in Indiana to meet flexible fuel standards. This standard would require that gasoline sold in Indiana contain ethanol, which is made from corn, and diesel fuel contain biodiesel, which is made from soybeans.

We need to address our state's energy needs and supporting these two bills will move our state forward on energy policy. Indiana needs to take advantage of its natural resources and become a key leader in the production of alternative fuels. With the right leadership, Indiana will benefit from promoting energy independence and stimulate growth in the state's economy. I will continue to support this legislation and encourage you to contact me with any questions or concerns.

God's Heavenly Garden

Sometimes God picks the flower that is still in full bloom;
Sometimes the rosebud's chosen that we feel He picked too soon.
Sometimes the flower is fading
with petals floating down,
But God knows the perfect time to gather flowers from the ground.
There is a heavenly garden in which God takes great pleasure.
Because He's placed within it the loved ones that we treasure.
He walks among the blossoms
giving them eternal rest,
And I know that it must please him
Because he chose our very best.

Love and miss you,
Aunt Dar
